15th International „ERBE“ Symposium

Cultural Heritage in Geosciences, Mining and Metallurgy - Libraries - Archives - Museums -

Krahuletz-Museum,
Eggenburg /Austria
13th - 20th June 2020

Congress location:

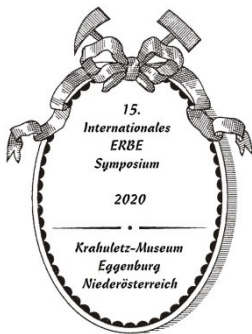

The city of Eggenburg (<https://www.eggenburg.at/>) is climatically located between Weinviertel in the east and Waldviertel in the west, whereby the surrounding countryside is used agriculturally and the wine culture dominates towards the east. The area was continuously populated from the Neolithic period. In the 11th century a castle and a church settlement were built, which had been expanded in the 12th century to a planned castle town. In 1277 Eggenburg became a realm imperial, princely city. It is located in the area of the castle, the parish church and the main square on a granite hill, which is covered to the east by fossil marine deposits and loess and is encircled by the Schmida-River.

General Topic:

The importance of archives, museums and collections for the development of earth sciences;
Friday, June 19, 2020: Geology and Myth (Working Group History of Earth Sciences / ÖGG)

Intended topics of presentations and posters

- Natural and cultural heritage of geology, mining and metallurgy in terms of sustainable development and mobility.
- Transfer of geological, mining and metallurgical knowledge between different European and non-European countries or regions (important personalities, institutions and companies until the end of the 19th century).
- Natural and geological heritage, cultural landscapes, industrial architecture, industrial machinery and equipment and technological processes as potential sustainable development.
- The digitization of geological, mining and metallurgical heritage, such as maps, plans, drawings, land registers, documents, images and photos.
- Intangible heritage in geology, mining and metallurgy: knowledge, inventions, skills, customs,

- The introduction of technological and technical innovations move the knowledge and behavior of previous practices into the background. Different working habits and practices, both the community and the individual concerning, are associated with it.
- Language and terminology are a special component of the intangible cultural heritage characteristic of individual linguistic or national communities. Preservation of field names, designation of work processes, employees and machines are plentiful in linguistic diversity and at the same time show the presence of individual activities in space and time.
- Geology and Myth (together with the Working Group History of Earth Sciences on Friday)
